Conservation groups oppose oil cleanup plan

by Dan Sanderson Staff Writer

Conservation and angling organizations are battling a plan that would allow an oil firm to pump treated water from Otsego County into the headwaters of the AuSable River.

Merit Energy, a Texas based oil firm, received a permit from Department Environmental Quality (DEQ) which would allow 1.15 million gallons of treated water to be pumped into Kolke Creek, a creek which feeds into the headwaters of the AuSable River.

The plan, which would take about 10 years, is part of a pollution cleanup project in the Manistee River watershed.

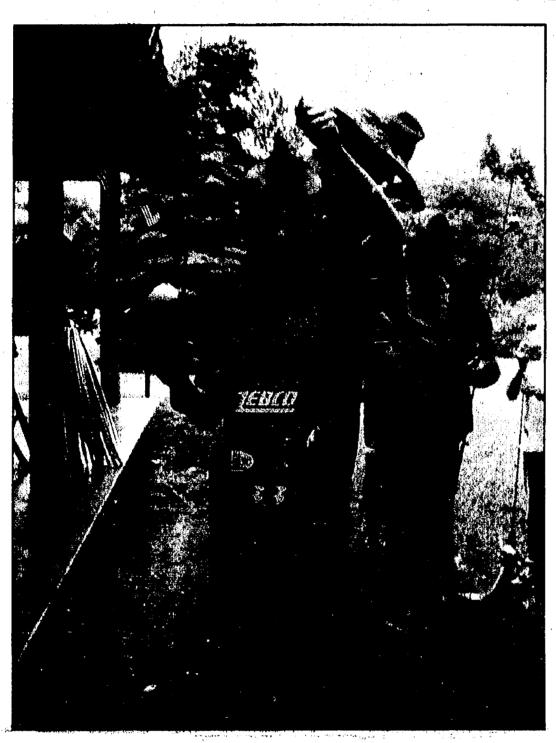

Department of Natural Resources fisheries officials have opposed the plan, saying it is not common practice to move water from one watershed to another.

The Anglers of the AuSable and Trout Unlimited are also protesting issuing the permit, arguing that increased flows in the river cold result in erosion, impact fish habitat, plant life and insect hatches.

LIBRARY BOARD RE-OPENS LOVELLS BRANCH

by Matt Seager Staff Writer

On June 24, the Crawford County Library System (CCLS) Board of Trustees closed the Lovells Library branch in response to various legal concerns, most of which stemmed from the fact that the branch had been operating without a signed contract between the Lovells Township and the CCLS Board. During a special board meeting on July 1, the issues were resolved and arrangements were made to re-open the Lovells branch.

At the conclusion of the June 24 meeting, Lovells officials decided that they would make their final decision on whether they would accept or reject the CCLS contract only after speaking with their township attorney.

On June 30, the Lovells Township Board met with their attorney to discuss possibilities for the future of the Lovells Library. Members of the Lovells community were asked to provide their input. Fifty residents attended to share their opinions on this critical issue.

At the June 24 meeting, these ideas were expressed to the CCLS Board. Township Attorney Richard Edmonds, who spoke for the Lovells Township Board, announced that it was the wish of the township to remain associated with the CCLS, on the condition that certain changes be made to the contract.

These changes primarily included provisions for the implementation of more effective lines of communication between CCLS officials and Lovells Township officials. It also includes provisions for the formation of an official Lovells Library Advisory Committee.

This committee, which has certain rights and responsibilities that are backed by state law, will have a variety of functions. It will serve to examine the needs and concerns that surround the Lovells Library and present them to the CCLS Director, Bambi Mansfield-Sanderson.

For example, the advisory committee for the Frederic Library recently suggested to CCLS officials that additional security implementations were needed at the Frederic branch. Because that advisory board has an effective means of communicating with CCLS officials, the issue was addressed quickly and

The Lovells Library Advisory Committee will provide those same advantages.

The committee will also provide for a liaison between the committee and the CCLS Board. This liaison will attend CCLS Board meetings in order to keep the people of Lovells up to date.

The third function of the committee will be to work with CCLS staff in order to inform Lovells Library volunteers on correct policies and procedures. This will include education on new laws and regulations that may affect the operations of county libraries.

Both parties involved acknowledged that improved communication and policy education are essential for the Lovells Library and the CCLS to work together to serve the people of Lovells.

The only major addition to the contract that was rejected outright by the CCLS Board was a provision that provided for the official training of Lovells Library volunteers by CCLS staff. If these volunteers were trained to the point of qualifying as "staff" they would be able to access library records without being in violation of Michigan privacy laws.

Nevertheless, the CCLS Board's attorney, David Sabin, felt that this action would result in additional legal concerns and other problems. Among these concerns was the concept that only a paid employee may qualify as "staff." The volunteer staff would be unpaid.

There was also concern among the board members that this contract addition might result in the circumvention of the CCLS chain of command. They contended that problems could arise from a staff volunteer retaining the same power as a regularly hired and supervised staff member. Representatives of Lovells Township agreed to the new contract despite the omission of this point, although they did mention that this concept may be pursued further by the newly formed Lovells Library Advisory Committee.

The Lovells Library was certified to re-open upon the signing of the modified contract. The branch is currently operating under Vanna Ward, a CCLS staff member who has been temporarily assigned to the branch. As of press time, CCLS Director Bambi Mansfield-Sanderson is currently seeking a staff librarian to permanently fill the position.

Flag burning issue just getting started

ONE OF THE burning issues of our times - and with no pun intended seems to be whether anyone should be able to burn an American flag without being punished for it.

Exceptions exist, of course, for the proper destruction of the flag, and according to most flag codes, the only proper way to destroy a flag is by burning it, but under certain carefully structured circumstances.

The issue is to protect the American flag from being burned or mishandled as a form of political or social protest.

The idea has been around for a long time. In 1989, the supreme court by a 5-4 vote decided flag burning as political protest is protected by the First Amendment as an expression of free speech and therefore permissible.

Since then attempts have been continuous to amend the constitution to overturn that ruling and protect the flag from burning and all other desecration.

For some strange reason, public discussion and votes on these attempts usually seem to focus around this time of the calendar when Flag Day or Independence Day are fresh in the public mind. Votes during election year are not uncommon, either.

So far constitutional amendments to outlaw flag desecration have not won full congressional approval, but this year may be different.

WITH EIGHT VOTES to spare, the U.S. House of Representatives last month approved an amendment which would hand to congress the right to outlaw desecration of the flag, including burning a flag in protest. Vote was 286-130, with two-thirds of those present needed for approval.

The amendment would not itself outlaw flag burning but would give congress the right to decide what can and cannot be done with the flag.

Presumably the consideration that flag burning is a legal expression of free speech would be a thing of the past.

Now the proposed constitutional amendment is in the hands of the senate, and with today's senate being what it is, a two-thirds vote there is possible indeed.

If the senate ever votes yes, then the real fun will begin. Before an amendment can be added to the constitution, it must be approved by the legislatures of three-fourths of the states, so the arguments for and against freedom of expression versus sanctity for the flag can go on state by state for many years.

Unfortunately the whole question of flag burning has advanced beyond the stage of patriotism versus individual rights. It's become highly partisan, too. Reasonable and rational discussion of the issue is difficult to achieve.

Generally Democrats favor protecting freedom of expression including flag

THE HOUSE VOTE is indicative of the partisan divide. Among Michigan's 15 house members, only five split ranks. Of nine Republicans, all voted yes except Reps. Joe Schwarz of Battle Creek, Vern Ehlers of Grand Rapids and Peter Hoekstra of Holland. Of six Democrats, all voted no except Reps. Dale Kildee of Flint and Bart Stupak of Menominee.

Regular readers of the Almanack possibly are aware that over the years I have written several essays in opposition to this or similar constitutional amendments. My views have not changed.

I still come down firmly in favor of protecting the freedom of speech rights of political or social protest. Protecting the rights which the flag represents, in my view, is much more important than protecting the actual cloth that is destroyed when a flag burns.

Whether the senate will ever vote on the amendment, or even call it up for consideration, remains to be determined.

If so, then the focus naturally will turn to the state by state struggle for ratification, which will be an enduring and contentious process.

It could all turn out to be a moot point anyway. With the supreme court being what it is - and possibly what it could become with a couple of new appointments of new justices - the whole question could wind up back in court, and the 5-4 pro-burning vote could turn right around again.

Richard Milliman is a veteran newspaperman, and a contributing columnist to several Michigan newspapers.

Do we have to dump tea in a harbor?

To the editor:

If you make $300, federal tax takes from the $300, Social Security takes from the $300, Medicare takes from the $300, state and local also the same, from the $300. If you get a bonus or vacation pay it's taxed. If you save for retirement you pay tax when you use it (interest). Social Security draws interest at 16% for 40 years on your money. If you live to draw back from it you are charged taxes again. And some bureaucrats say you're a freeloader.

If you bank your pay you are taxed on the interest and the bank must help the IRS get your money. And they wonder why Americans don't save at banks.

We pay sales tax on houses, property tax, power, water, gas, insurance, telephone, drivers license, cars, gasoline, license plates, use tax and on anything you buy except food, and someone is trying to tax that also.

My letter sounds like a rant because it is. Do we have to dump tea in a harbor to get someone's attention?

> Richard L. Bulley Grayling

wipe out nearly three-quarters of the federal budget deficit, projected at $427 billion this year. As a matter of basic fairness to honest Americans, we need to close the gap.

Senate's Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations, on which I am the senior Democrat, has been focusing on efforts to collect unpaid taxes from businesses that receive federal contracts. In essence, these government contractors take taxpayer dollars and then fail to pay their own tax obligations. Dodging taxes is never acceptable, but doing it while at the same time taking advantage of government contracts paid for by hardworking taxpayers is par-

The Government Accountability Office (GAO),

Out of the Taxpayer's Wallet Congress' watchdog, has been investigating this issue. GAO found tens of thousand of count tractors owing billions of dollars in unpaid taxes, including 27,000 contractors at the Defense Department alone that owe a total of $3 billion. To better understand the problem, GAO took a closer look at 97 DOD and civilian contractors and found egregious examples of companies dodging taxes for years. The abuses included executives withholding money from employee wages for Social Security and Medicare taxes and then spending the money on luxuries for themselves such as expensive homes, cars, or vacations.

Despite those abuses, the contractors kept getting contracts and the taxpayer dollars that went along with those contracts. For example, last year, one contractor owing $1 million in unpaid taxes was paid $1.5 million by the Department of Homeland Security and other federal agencies. Another contractor owing $900,000 had a 20-year history of opening a business, failing to remit payroll taxes to IRS, closing the business, and then repeating the cycle.

This tax dodging is not only unfair to the honest taxpayers left to make up the difference, but also to the honest companies that have to compete against the tax dodgers that aren't paying their fair share. It's simply mind boggling that it is allowed to continue.

One solution is to stop allowing all those taxpayer dollars to be paid to deadbeat contractors. Instead, a portion of each contract payment should be withheld and used to pay down the contractor's tax debt. Congress set up a system to do just that in 1997, when the Taxpayer Relief Act created a federal tax levy program authorizing federal agencies to withhold 15 percent of any federal payment going to a person with unpaid taxes. Last year, that percentage was hiked to 100. For a variety of reasons, however, the tax levy program has collected peanuts - $21 million from all federal contractors last year - when it should be collecting billions.

We can do better. Earlier this year, I worked with Republican Senator Norm Coleman to introduce legislation to fix one of the critical problems in the tax levy program. Our bill would require, every contractor to provide its taxpayer identification number when bidding on a government contract so that the government can identify those businesses that owe taxes and withhold a portion of their contract payments. We are also working to require contractors who get paid by credit card to be included in the tax levy program; right now $10 billion in credit card payments never get screened for tax cheats. Senator Coleman and I will soon offer a more comprehensive bill to fix a host of other problems that allow tax cheating by federal contractors to persist, including a provision to bar tax cheats from getting government contracts to begin with,

Most federal contractors provide our country with valuable goods or services, and do so while paying their taxes. The contractors who take payment in taxpayer dollars, while dodging payment of their fair share, hurt the honest taxpayers, honest businesses, and our country as a whole.

Carl Levin is the senior U.S. senator from Michigan.

Celebrity Roast to benefit Animal Shelter

laughs, gasps, food, music and prizes? In the great tradition of the late Dean Martin, the Animal Shelter of Crawford County will present its first-ever Celebrity Roast on Saturday, July 9, at The Ole Barn in Grayling.

Shelter Board President and event organizer, Sharon Priebe, has managed to talk local businessman, Randy Thompson, into serving as the "Roastee" taking (and giving) the jabs for the evening.

"I must be crazy to do this," said Thompson, owner of Century 21 River Country Real Estate in Grayling. "But it's all for a good cause."

"Randy has been a good sport and very gracious about helping us out," Priebe said. "A bunch of his longtime friends will make up the panel of 'Roasters,' so this should be an evening we won't soon forget."

Crawford County
Commissioner Scott Hanson willserve as the Master of Ceremonies.

Besides the Roast, a variety of musical acts have been recruited and organized by local musician Brian Ashton, including Dixieland, Blues, banjo pickers, vocalists and more.

The Bible Speaks

A Christian Hero

A disabled Vietnam Veteran with a bullet from that war still lodged in his brain was recently ordered to take down a "Thank You Jesus" sign in his window. Bill Krisco of Elyria, Ohio reportedly said, "I thank Jesus. If it wasn't for him, I wouldn't be here today." Out of appreciation for his new home, he placed a sign in his front window which read: "Thank You Jesus For Our New Home."

Christians being singled out and persecuted in America for their faith are often accused of exaggeration or of having some kind of martyr complex. The politically correct crowd in the name of separation of church and state insist upon no public mention of God. They believe making a public example of. Christians will embarrass other Christians and cause them to remain silent.

Well, it may work for wimps, but it will not silence strong people of faith! Krisco said, "They can have my sign; they can take it down over my dead body. They're going to have to kill me to get that sign down. I mean that." I'm sure some liberals will want to blame his response on the bullet in his brain more than the faith in his heart. Personally, I have equal respect for both his brain and his heart. His sacrificial service fighting for his country proved him to be a person of loyalty and courage. Some liberals might accuse this man of being filled with hate. But I don't see anything but love in this man's life. He loved his country enough to risk his life to fight for it., Now he loves his Savior Jesus Christ enough to publicly praise Him regardless of the cost. It is for the defense of liberty and freedom our soldiers have bled and died. We possess no unalienable right more important as Americans than our freedom of speech and worship.

One of the main reasons for the threat to religious liberty and speech in America is because of silent "so-called" Christians. Christians have been martyred for their faith for 2,000 years. Stephen, the first Christian martyr in Acts 6:8-7:60 refused to stop preaching in the face of death. Even after they "gnashed on him with their teeth" and stoned him, he ended his message praying "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit." And as he died he prayed these last words: "Lord, lay not this sin to their charge."

Public profession is the first mark of a believing Christian: "9That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved. 10For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation." (Romans 10:9,10)

We should always share a testimony and never be ashamed especially when we have opportunity. "15But sanctify the Lord God in your hearts: and be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you with meekness and fear. (1 Pet 3:15). The "meekness and fear" in our testimony should be toward pleasing God, not man. As Peter said in Acts 5:29: "We ought to obey God rather than men." Someone once asked, "If you were arrested for being a Christian, would there by enough evidence to convict you?" How can anyone claim to be a Christian and appear to be publicly ashamed of Jesus Christ? Now is our chance and privilege to stand up and share our faith! Pastor "B"

Protect yourself from mosquitoes this summer

(ARA) - Few words strike more fear in outdoor enthusiasts than West Nile virus or encephalitis. Understanding more about these diseases can help you protect yourself and your family when you're enjoying time outdoors.

West Nile virus and encephalitis viruses come in many forms, but have two things in common - a nonhuman primary host and an infected blood-feeding arthropod, such as a mosquito or tick, according to Dr. Fabio Del Piero, DMV, assistant professor of pathology at the University of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Del Piero says there are five main arboviral agents of encephalitis in the United States that are transmitted by mosquitoes: West Nile virus (WNV), eastern equine encephalitis (EEE), western equine encephalitis (WEE), St. Louis encephalitis (SLE), and La Crosse encephalitis (LAC). Another virus, Powassan, is a minor cause of encephalitis in the northern United States, and is transmitted by ticks. Most encephalitis cases occur from June through September, when these pests are most active.

A majority of human infections are asymptomatic or result in flu-like symptoms. In very few cases infection may lead to encephalitis, which can be fatal or lead to permanent neurological damage.

Currently, neither antibiotics nor antiviral drugs are considered effective for these viruses. Treatment is primarily supportive. There are no commercially available human vaccines for these U.S. diseases. However, there are some vaccines available for horses that may be susceptible to some of the viruses.

West Nile virus facts

West Nile virus (WNV) is a

flavivirus that can infect humans, birds, mosquitoes, horses and other mammals. WNV first appeared in the United States in 1999, causing illness and death in birds, horses, and humans. Dr. Del Piero, also a Diplomate of the American College of Veterinary Pathology and a noted expert in WNV, points out that while the initial outbreak of this disease was limited to the northeastern United States, the virus had an inexorable migration across the continental United States over the next several years, causing significant losses among affect-

Horses have been most affected by the recent WNV epidemic in the United States. Losses to the equine industry have been large and unprecedented. An equine vaccine for WNV has been available since 2001 and appears to be effective in limiting the incidence of disease in well-vaccinated populations. A second approved vaccine has recently been marketed for use in horses. No WNV vaccine is available for humans.

WNV infections have also been documented in other mammals, including dogs and llamas, as well as endangered wild and captive bird populations. Do not handle any of these dead animals with bare hands and be sure to contact your local health department for instructions on reporting and disposing of the bodies.

In temperate zones, WNV encephalitis cases occur primarily in the late summer or early fall. In the southern climates, West Nile virus can be transmitted year round. In a very small number of cases, WNV also has been spread through blood transfusions, organ transplants, breastfeeding and even during pregnancy from mother to baby. While anyone is susceptible to WNV, persons over 50 have the highest risk of severe disease.

Symptoms in people can vary from mild to severe. Approximately 80 percent of people who are infected with WNV will not show symptoms. Symptoms can last for as short as a few days to several weeks. Severe symptoms may include high fever, headache, neck stiffness, stupor, disorientation, coma, tremors, convulsions, muscle weakness, vision loss, numbness and paralysis. Neurological effects can be per-

People typically develop symptoms between three and 14 days after they are bitten by an infected mosquito. In horses, as in humans, fever may precede the onset of central nervous system signs, or may be the only evidence of infection. Treatment for horses is supportive and owners should call their veterinarian.

Prevention is the best policy You can prevent WNV and encephalitis in two ways: personal protection and through public health measures that reduce mosquito populations. Personal measures include reducing time outdoors, particularly in early morning or evening hours, wearing long pants and long-sleeved shirts, and applying insect repellents containing DEET (N, N-diethylmeta-toluamide) to exposed skin. Good window and door screens also help keep mosqui-

Eliminating mosquito breeding sites is also important. Empty standing water from flower pots, buckets and barrels. Change the water in pet dishes. Replace water in bird baths weekly. Drill holes in tire swings so water drains out. Keep children's wading pools empty and on their sides when Many public health departments spray insecticides to kill adult mosquitoes and larvae. Aerial spraying is the preferred method in emergency situations.

State enhances gasoline inspections for summer travel season

With gas prices in the state of Michigan averaging as much as 35 cents more per gallon this year than last; Governor Granholm today renewed her call for the State to take action to protect consumers at the pump. In answering the Governor's call, Agriculture Michigan Commission Chair James Byrum today announced that state inspectors have enhanced the gasoline inspection program using a risk-based approach, to better serve Michigan gasoline consumers. Byrum also unveiled a new, more visible pump decal with the state's motor fuels consumer complaint hotline (1-800-MDA-Fuel).

Citizens deserve to get the biggest bang for their gasoline dollar, said Granholm. In a time of soaring gasoline prices, we want to remind people to be vigilant, and that the State of Michigan is being vigilant as well. The state will enforce the law against those who would take advantage of customers in tough financial times, and protect the majority of law abiding gas station dealers against unfair and unethical practices of a few.

The Michigan Department of Agriculture (MDA) is the single state agency responsible for ensuring that gasoline sold at Michigan's 5,100 retail gasoline outlets meets quality and quantity standards.

The new risk-based motor fuels inspection program builds on the success of last years May first to Labor Day project, where state inspectors conducted an audit of nearly 1,000 stations across the state. The audit identified patterns of non-compliance, which MDA used to develop a risk-based inspection model. This model includes evaluating risk based on compliance history, consumer quality and quantity complaints, consumer purchasing patterns, and device location, age and volume. Data is compiled based on these risk factors, and station inspections are prioritized according to their relative risk. Inspectors are then able to focus their inspection efforts on stations with the greatest risk for non-compliance.

Last years audit also showed the majority of violations were due to maintenance issues. In general, when station owners became aware of problems at their station they worked to solve them. To help stations be proactive in maintaining their equipment, MDA works with stations to identify the things they can control at the station to stay in compliance. These include monitoring the amount of water in underground storage tanks, and making sure the fill caps for underground tanks are tight fitting to keep water out; ensuring their supplier is providing a product that meets quality standards; tracking inventory levels and comparing them to sales records; and taking positive actions to resolve any consumer complaints.

By targeting repeat violators, we can focus on bringing those stations into compliance, and help the honest business owners stay in compliance and compete on a level playing field, said Byrum. This risk-based approach allows us to provide the broadest protection for the greatest number of consumers.

Byrum also encouraged travelers to conserve gas and save money by staying closer to home this summer and enjoying all that Michigan has to offer - from big cities and world class golf courses to secluded beaches, campsites and fishing holes, and everything in between.

Consumers looking for convenient, timely information on gasoline prices and suggestions on how to conserve fuel and save money at the pump can visit www.michigan.gov/gasprices. For Michigan travel ideas, visit the state's official Web site at: www.michigan.gov.

Career camp' at Kirtland teaches students skills

More than 40 area middle and high school students got a whirlwind education on a variety of career-related subjects recently, during the two-week Vocational Education Summer Exploration Program (VESEP) at Kirtland Community College.

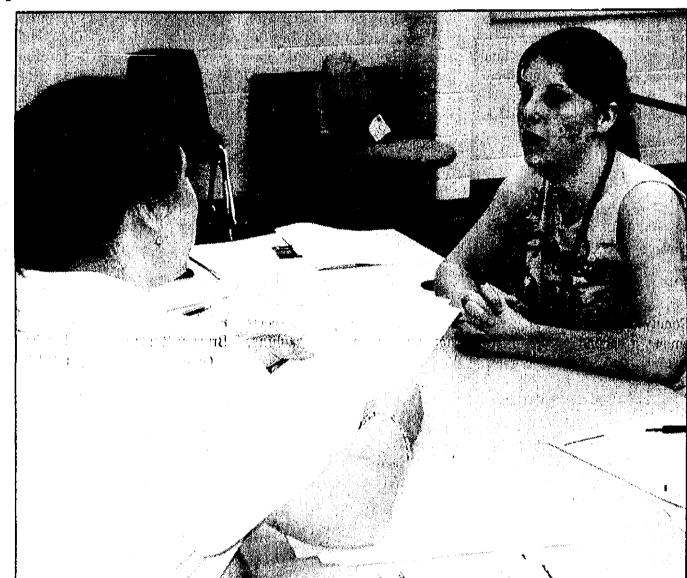

Sponsored annually by the Crawford, Oscoda, Ogemaw and (COOR) Roscommon Intermediate School District, the program is offered to at-risk students within the four-county district, offering them the opportunity to learn everything from welding to how to put together a winning resume.

"The kids have a great time and many of them have come up to me saying they want to do this again next year," said Tammy Gerdes, COOR's Workforce Investment Act coordinator and director of the VESEP program.

"Even though budget constraints shrank the normally fourweek program to an actionpacked two weeks," Gerdes said, "the kids had fun and, as always, learned many skills."

The program could be termed a "career camp," and exposes students to many potential career paths, including social work, natural resources, automotive technology, public safety and child development. Most of the instructors are from Kirtland, but several are provided by area school districts.

Employability Skills class for the program for 11 years out of the 15 or so that the program has been offered. His is one of the classes that all VESEP participants eventually take.

"They learn how to fill out a job application, how to put together a resume - making sure it has no spelling or grammar mistakes in it – and they learn interview skills," Perialis said. "Skills they'll need to get a job."

Most of the students are between 14 and 16 years old, so these are skills they'll soon put to

Tanya Wolcott is the technology support person for Crawford-AuSable Schools and she teaches the "Build It, Keep It" class from which the students leave with a complete computer, supplied by the program, after learning its innermost secrets.

"They learn how to boot it up and download their own software," Wolcott said.

"They learn how to troubleshoot problems, then they completely take the computer apart, right down to the motherboard, and put it back together, learning what every piece does in the process. This way, if they have problems with the computer at home, they'll have a chance at knowing how to fix it. We're teaching them technology skills."

In the Visual Imaging course, Kirtland graphic design instructor Kathy Neff helped students put together a documentary of their camp experiences. The documentary and other class accomplishments were highlighted during the graduation and closing ceremonies hosted at Higgins Lake's Camp Westminster on the last day of the camp, July 1.

"It was a cozy atmosphere this year," Gerdes said, noting that enrollment has been as high as 70 students in the past. "Everybody did a bang-up job."

Juggler Ben Spitzer, along with two assistants, show children and their parents how to do magic at the Primary School on June 30. Along with the magic and juggling, Spitzer delivered plenty of laughs. After juggling a toy turkey, he made the following pun: "Look at that - poultry in motion. Excuse the fowl jokes."

Crawford County Library to receive free classic books

Just days before the nation celebrates the 229th anniversary of its independence, the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) announced that Devereaux Memorial Crawford County Library, Grayling, was among a second group of 500 school and local libraries throughout the country, including 18 in Michigan, that will receive free copies of 15 classic books from the We the People Bookshelf, with four offered in Spanish. The theme of this year's bookshelf is "freedom."

As part of the award, libraries will hold programs or events to raise awareness of these classic books and engage young readers. The first group of 500 libraries was announced earlier this year in March.

"Independence Day provides the perfect occasion to appreciate our nation's freedom," said NEH Chairman Bruce Cole. "The Endowment's We the People Bookshelf enables younger readers to examine this important concept from many perspectives. This year's bookshelf tells the stories of freedom sought, freedom denied, freedom lived." In 2004, the first year of the We the People Bookshelf, 1,000 libraries received books for young readers on the theme of "courage."

The new awards are part of the Endowment's We the People initiative, which supports projects that strengthen the teaching, study, and understanding of American history and culture. The awards will go to neighborhood and public school libraries—as well as libraries at private schools, charter schools, and home school cooperatives throughout the United States. each of which will receive a set of the 15 books, posters, bookmarks, and other promotional materials from NEH through the American Library Association, which is working in partnership with NEH.

The We the People Bookshelf on "freedom" contains the following books:

Kirtland helps put spotlight on health careers Summer exploration camps will help kids prepare for a future in health

Having moved well beyond the traditional choice of becoming a doctor or a nurse, today's health career palette is a kaleidoscope of professional career choices - many of which are facing a shortage of workers. To promote an early interest in health careers on the part of today's teenagers, Kirtland Community College is co-sponsoring several Summer Health Careers Exploration Camps for middle school students.

The camps will help them learn more about careers in health and to make sure they know what it takes to prepare for those careers.

"If they're interested in a health career, they need to know that they should be taking biology and math and those types of classes when they get into high school," said Karen Brown, associate dean at the college and one of the camp coordinators.

The three-day camps are being funded by a grant from the Michigan Regional Skills Alliance which recognizes that the shortage of health care workers in this country - especially nurses - does not appear to be going away any time soon.

Two camps are slated to take place in July - the first in Gaylord July 21-23; the second in Roscommon, July 26-28. A third camp in Tawas took place in June.

During the first two days of each camp, from 9:30 a.m. - 2 p.m., participants will attend interactive sessions with professionals from local hospitals, including nurses, pharmacists, respiratory therapists, physical therapists, radiography technicians, surgical technicians and medical technologists.

Lunches and snacks are provided, as is bus transportation to and from the local middle schools. Campers all receive a scrub top that features the words Health Care "Future Professional" on it that they'll wear to the third day of camp which is conducted at the participating hospitals.

At the hospital, Northflight helicopter will visit and careers in emergency medical care will be discussed, along with other hospital-based activi-

CRAF Center to hold free public concert

Mustard's Retreat will be performing at the Gazebo on the CRAF Center lawn in Roscommon on July 13, at 7 the duo of David Tamulevich and Michael Hough bring their eclectic blend of contemporary and traditional music. They fill the program with thoughtful humorous stories and songs and "music to cure what ails you."

Tamulevich and Hough began their music together over 30 years ago in Ann Arbor. They found they had a common love of folk music and song writing. Within a year and a half they found themselves as full-time performers. Mustard's Retreat is the title of the original tune penned by Tamulevich, which had been named for a friend and guitarist Nancy Mustard, and melded with the title of a traditune "Bonaparte's tional Retreat."

Mustard's Retreat concert takes the audience through a wide musical landscape. They present the poignant and the dark sides of love to the vivid and often hilarious ballads and tall tales of Paul Bunyan, from maundering cadavers and stupid frogs to American traditional stories and songs. All of this accompanied by guitar, electric bass, dulcimer, harmonica, penny whistles and mandolin.

Michigan Ag Director seeks public assistance in stopping illegal distribution of invasive crop pest being planted

Michigan Department of Agriculture (MDA) Director Dan Wyant has a message for residents, particularly wildlife enthusiasts and farmers. "It has come to our attention that a popular product being planted in the spring to feed wildlife in the fall and winter is actually an illegal plant," Wyant says. "We have discovered that sporting goods retailers around the state have been selling the propagative parts of the prohibited noxious weed, yellow nutsedge, as a food plot material for a variety of wildlife. Yellow nutsedge (Cyperus esculentus) is a serious pest in agricultural areas as it threatens to reduce yields. It is a perennial weed that can be very difficult, and expensive to control, and requires the use of additional pesticides when it invades farm crops."

Several suppliers, using a variety of brand names, are selling the small tubers under the common name chufa. Other names are chufa flatsedge and chufa tigernut. Consumers that may have purchased the product are encouraged to return it to the retailer. State inspectors are advising retailers found to be selling the product to stop doing so and return the product to the manufacturer. Retailers who voluntarily cooperate with MDA to stop selling this product will not face regulatory actions.

Anyone with information about this product is urged to contact MDA's Pesticide and Plant Pest Management Division at 517-373-1087, or any one of the regional MDA offices listed: Traverse City - (231) 922-5210, Grand Rapids - (616) 356-0600, Saginaw - (989) 758-1778, Saint Joseph - (269) 428-2546, Lansing - (517) 335-1830, Southfield -(248) 356-1701.

The Michigan Department of Agriculture is dedicated to protecting agricultural products and the food production system in Michigan.

Loose dogs unleash problems for DTE Energy meter readers

Dog bite injuries have long been a problem for DTE Energy meter readers, who often have to enter the homeowners' yard to read their MichCon gas and Detroit Edison electric meters. Unfortunately, these injuries are on the rise.

"Once the weather gets warmer, many people leave their dogs in the yard unattended. With the growing popularity of 'invisible' underground fencing, the number of unrestrained pets is growing, and our meter readers can't always tell if there's a dog in the yard," said Robert Sitkauskas, DTE Energy director of customer service. "As a result, more of our employees are being injured by dog bites."

If a meter reader feels threatened by an unrestrained dog or other hazard, they may not enter the yard. As a result, the meter may not be read and an estimate will be used to calculate the customer's bill.

To help prevent injuries and to ensure actual meter readings, DTE Energy asks customers to keep their pets leashed or in the house when the meter reader is in the area. Dogs should never be tied to meters as it poses danger to the animals and meter readers. Customers can determine the date of their next meter reading by checking the date of the last reading on their bill. Meters are read within one or two business days of that date.

customers should remember that they are responsible for the supervision of their animals. Failure to properly restrain a dog can expose the owner to civil lia-

Bergan trial adjourned again

by Dan Sanderson Staff Writer

A trial for a man accused of killing a 21-year-old Grayling man four years ago has been delayed again.

46th Circuit Court Judge Dennis Murphy on Tuesday adjourned a trial that was scheduled to start on Monday, July 11 for Michael Patrick Bergan, 44.

Bergan was arraigned in February, 2004 on a charge of open murder and use of a firearm during a felony for allegedly killing Shane Piehl, 21, of Grayling, in order to steal OxyContin, a powerful and highly addictive pain drug.

close range with a .22-caliber rifle on a two-track off Four Mile Road near I-75 south of Grayling. The slaying occurred May 29, 2001.

Now, Bergan is not scheduled to face trial until Monday,

Murphy was forced to delay the jury trial because DNA testing from the Michigan State Police Crime Lab will not be available until August, according to court clerks.

Peter Shumar, Bergan's court appointed attorney from Traverse City, has requested that Dr. Pepper bottles found at the crime scene be tested for DNA.

Bergan is not the first suspect charged in Piehl's death. Randee' Craig Johnson was acquitted on a murder charge following a two-week trial in May 2002.

In previous testimony, Huss alleged that Bergan and Johnson Piehl was shot in the head at tried to lure Piehl to the Four Mile Road parking lot rather than complete the drug deal at his home > Bergan is serving a three to 10-year prison sentence in the St. Louis Correctional Facility for an unrelated larceny conviction.

MDOT enforces placement of real estate signs

The Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) reminds real estate companies and property owners regarding the proper placement of signs advertising the sale or lease of real property along state trunklines.

"While we acknowledge the significance of these signs as they relate to the real estate industry or individuals selling their property, we also are keenright-of-way clear for the safety of Michigan's motorists and pedestrians," said Randy Van Portfliet, MDOT Superior Region Engineer.

Signs are required to be more than 30 feet from the edge of the roadway (white line) for highways that do not have barrier curbs. For highways with barrier curbs, the signs must be more than three feet from the back of the curb Also, signs are not permitted within clear vision areas at intersections or commercial driveways, so they do not interfere with the sight distance of a driver. Directional signs are prohibited adjacent to state highways. No signs may be placed along freeways or ramps, within the limits of freeway interchanges, or along other roadly aware of the need to keep the ways with limited or controlled access restrictions.

Improperly placed signs will be removed by MDOT. They will be held for seven days at the local MDOT office or maintenance garage, after which time they will be discarded.

These requirements also are formally communicated to local real estate companies as a courtesy each year.

Hartwick Pines to host annual event on July 16-17

Hartwick Pines State Park, located two miles east of I-75 on M-93, is one of the largest state parks in the entire state of Michigan. On July 16-17, the park will host Woodshaving Days, an annual event that features woodcarvers and other woodworking crafts, blacksmiths, coopering, timber framing, blacksmithing, rope-making, wool spinning, weaving, traditional 19th century music from a dulcimer band, and the operating of the park's historic sawmill.

The state park is home to one of the few remaining tracts of old growth pines in the midwest. It also houses the Michigan Forest Visitor Center, which is the official state interpretative center of the Michigan Forest Industry, a logging museum, and hiking trails featuring interpretative hikes.

The Visitor Center features an 1,800-square foot, hands-on exhibit area and a 105-seat, nine projector theater.

One of the big draws for the park is the forest of old growth pines. The old growth forest tract used to total 85 acres, but storm damage and age have reduced that amount to about 50 acres. Even with the reduction in acreage, the old growth forest tract is still one of the largest in this region of the country.

As many as 250,000 visitors walk through the pines each year on foot trails to view the trees. Guided interpretive hikes and evening programs are available from professional park interpreters on staff.

Hartwick Pines State Park also offers camping with modern and full hook-ups, mountain bike trails, and a picnic/day use area.

Hartwick Pines also features numerous events and a few annual festivals during the spring and summer seasons, including Woodshaving Days in July, Forest Fest on August 13, and Black Iron Days on August 27-

Interlochen Music Radio announces expansion

INTERLOCHEN, Michigan -There will soon be more music in the air of northern Michigan, when Interlochen Center for the Arts expands its popular classical music radio service to counties including Mackinac, Emmet, Cheboygan, Otsego Charlevoix.

(IPR) classical music station expects to begin broadcasting on 88.5 FM in Mackinaw City by mid-July, officials announced today. The frequency, formerly WDQV, will become WIAB, adding a third IPR Music Radio frequency for listeners in northern Michigan. IPR Music Radio also broadcasts at 88.7 and 100.9 FM.

"At a time when other classical music stations are cutting back or closing, we are thrilled to offer this excellent music to more listeners than ever before," said Thom Paulson, Interlochen's vice president for media.

The Federal Communications Commission recently approved the transfer of the license to Interlochen. Service will begin as soon as technical modifications are complete, with a target of mid-July.

IPR Music Radio's addition of 88.5 FM in Mackinaw City strengthens the reach of this popular service to the region includ-Petoskey, Gaylord, Cheboygan, and St. Ignace -- areas that before were only marginally reached by Interlochen Public Radio.

IPR Music Radio is one of two Interlochen Public Radio's radio services provided by Interlochen Public Radio, connecting northern Michigan with arts, news and culture on a global scale. IPR also gives significant focus to local and regional news, information and artists, providing a trusted context for community discussion and showcasing the vitality and diversity of northern Michigan.

Among the programs that soon will be available to more listeners in Northern Michigan:

From New York, "Metropolitan Opera" From Columbia, SC: "Marion

McPartland's Piano Jazz" From Radio Netherlands: "The

Concertgebouw Orchestra" From St. Paul, MN: "A Prairie

Home Companion" "Pipedreams"

From the Celtic Diaspora: "Thistle and Shamrock"

From IPR's studios: "Live from Studio A," "Music by Request," "Repose" "Spectra"

Music from stages worldwide: "Performance Today" "Symphony Cast"

A complete program schedule can be found online at www.interlochen.org/ipr.

Journalists working for IPR News Radio also will be expanding their coverage of the "Tip of the Mitt" and Straits area, to be featured during IPR Music Radio news updates.

IPR Music Radio features local hosts for classical music from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday, with news cast from National Public Radio each half hour from 6 to 8:30 a.m. and 4 to 5:30 p.m., as well as every two hours throughout the day and evening.

Interlochen Public Radio is part of Interlochen Center for the Arts, the only community in the world that brings together a 2000-student summer camp program; a 450-student fine arts boarding high school with college-prep academics; a 155-student independent pre-K through 8th-grade day school and surnmer day camp; two 24-hour listener-supported public radio stations (classical music and news); year-round opportunities for hundreds of adults to engage in fulfilling artistic and creative programs; 600 arts presentations annually by students, faculty and world-renowned guest artists; and a global alumni base spanning eight decades, including a galaxy of arts luminaries.

Kirtland, Speedway Illustrated team up to launch national program to spotlight auto tech field

NASCAR enthusiasts may want to keep a close eye on their television screens during the July 17 New England 300 race. They may just catch sight of one lucky Kirtland Community College automotive technology graduate who will be touring the pits and garages, meeting NASCAR crew chiefs, mechanics and drivers and perhaps even waving a flag at the race.

Aaron Gemmill has been chosen to represent Kirtland - where he recently earned his automotive certificate - at the race which is run at the New Hampshire International Speedway in Loudon.

His visit will be the pilot for what is hoped will become a nationwide program, being sponsored by Speedway Illustrated magazine to recognize top automotive technology students. The program - Automotive Students For Success - will emphasize the ever-increasing need for certified mechanics in a field that becomes more technical every day.

"The goal of Automotive Students For Success is to help future mechanics realize how valuable an education is in getting a job, not only in NASCAR garages, but also at your local car dealer," said Dick Berggren, executive editor of Speedway Illustrated, a national magazine covering stock car racing. "We hope the program will also enlighten the general public on where these men and women who work on cars come from. Many of them are educated and trained in community college automotive technology programs." The program was developed jointly by Kirtland's marketing staff and Speedway Illustrated.

Gemmill will be hosted at the race by Berggren, as well as Silvio Calabi, publisher and COO, and the magazine's staff. Speedway Illustrated will be picking up all of his expenses at with the magazine staff and get an inside look at how automotive technicians play a vital role in stock car racing.

Gemmill said he has been to several NASCAR races over the years, but this time will be very different.

Just four years ago, he was working in his stepfather's welding and fabricating shop to help support his wife and then-2-yearold daughter. He worked on cars in the off hours and watched NASCAR on the weekends.

Today, however, it's an entirely different story. Today, with his working as a certified auto tech- father is now retired. nician at a new shop near his the event. Gemmill will hang out trained the last four years to get. His success story is what made him an easy choice for Speedway Illustrated's inaugural program.

"I'm pretty excited," Gemmill said about the upcoming race. "I think I'm going to learn a lot."

That desire to learn is what headed Gemmill down the path to his current career in the first place and it's something he looks forward to continuing.

"I'm hoping to continue on and earn my associate's degree," he

It could be said that education runs in his family - his parents are both elementary school Kirtland certificate in hand, he is steachers in the area, although his

"I'm not sure where my hometown of Lupton - a job he mechanical interests came from though," Gemmill said with his bright smile. "My dad won't even change oil."

> What started it all was the need to know how to fix one of his own cars.

"I had this S-10 that had transmission problems, so I took the transmission course out at Kirtland," Genmill said. That was in the fall of 2001.

"And I also had an old Jeep that I wanted to change the gears and axle on, so I took another class."

His work impressed his instructors, Bob Shingledecker and Richard "Smoke" Bonk.

"I was taking the classes as more of a hobby," Gemmill admitted. "But Bob and Smoke kept bugging me to take more."

Pretty soon it dawned on him that if he did keep taking classes, he could move out of his stepfather's shop and turn his hobby of working on cars into a career.

"It's funny, I knew I didn't want to keep doing what I was doing, but it didn't really sink in right away that this was something I could make a living at."

However, with that knowledge came the commitment he needed to make it happen. He stopped working for his stepfather and got a job at his alma mater, Ogemaw Heights High School, as a custodian and worked second and third shifts as he needed to in order to schedule around his classes,

This spring, the 27-year-old Gemmill graduated Kirtland with high honors, earning his certificate in automotive technology, master certification. He also passed the Michigan state board exams to become certified in all eight major automotive areas - engine diagnostics and repair, automatic transmission and transaxle, manual drive train, suspension and steering, brakes, electrical and electronic systems, heat and air conditioning, and engine performance.

On top of that, he gained his Automotive Service Excellence -ASE - certification, which is the key to just about any automotive shop in the country. He had several job offers by the time he completed the Kirtland program.

But with a growing family, that includes daughter Lyndsay, now 6, and son Bret, 3, Gemmill and his wife, Laura, chose to stick close to home. He's teamed up with another former Kirtland automotive student, Mark Allen Reilly, who, after 15 years of factory work in West Branch, found himself without a job when that factory closed in 2002.

In May, Reilly opened Allen's Auto & Recreational Care next to his home north of Rose City, with Gemmill as his right-hand

Reilly said he grew up repairing small engines, but began taking automotive classes at Kirtland in the mid 1980s to build his skills level. He continued to take classes when he could, particularly after the factory closed, and that's where he first met Gemmill.

"I figured this was a good fit all the way around," said Reilly about opening the shop and hiring Gemmill. The steady flow of business through his doors would seem to prove him right.

He was lucky in one respect, however. If the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) as its facts right, Gemmill could have found a good-paying job just about anywhere in the country.

In fact, the BLS listed the category of automotive service technicians second only to registered nurses on its list of occupations with the largest number of job openings nationwide - there were 31,890 in 2002. According to the BLS, a steady stream of job openings in this field and steady work will be the norm for several years to come, especially for those who have completed a training program. And given America's love affair with cars, this isn't expected to change anytime soon.

What is changing is the technical nature of the field. More and more employers - and car owners - will want to see their auto technician's diploma before they turn over the keys.

The same is true on the race track. The staff of Speedway Illustrated magazine believes that "The race crews of tomorrow are in school today," which is why they're launching the Automotive Students For Success program to make sure those classrooms are full.

The New England 300 will be televised on the TNT network. beginning at 1:30 p.m. Sunday, July 17. You'll know Gemmill by the big smile on his face.

Pool safety begins in your backyard

(NUI) - At parks and beaches, there are fences, barriers and trained lifeguards on duty to keep swimmers and their families safe. Unfortunately, many residential pools don't have the same safety measures in place.

Without proper poolside precautions, summer celebrations could quickly turn tragic.

"Each year, more than 250 children under the age of 5 are drowning victims, often in their own backyards," said John Drengenberg, manager of consumer affairs for Underwriters Laboratories Inc., a not-for-profit product safety certification organization.

Drengenberg says a child in trouble may not be able to alert anyone by splashing or yelling for help.

"We all need to be more aware and attentive whenever our families are around a pool," said Drengenberg. He offers these tips for keeping your summer pool parties safe.

• Follow the "10/20 pool patrol" rule. Anytime kids are in the water, have an adult on pool patrol. A supervising adult needs to be able to scan the entire pool every 10 seconds and reach the water within 20 seconds.

• If you own a pool, learn infant and child CPR and make sure your children take swimming lessons.

• If a child is missing and a pool is in the area, don't waste valuable time searching elsewhere - always check the pool

• Install a fence that is at least 4 feet high with a self-closing, self-latching gate that has a locking mechanism beyond a child's reach. The fence should completely separate the pool from the house and play area of the yard.

• Remove any overhanging tree limbs, chairs or ladders from the area to prevent children from climbing over the fence surrounding the pool. For aboveground pools, remove ladders and portable steps.

• Consider adding a pool motion sensor and gate alarms to alert you to anyone approaching or jumping into the pool.

• Don't forget a pool cover. Power safety covers are recommended for in-ground pools.

• Keep rescue devices such as Children should always be supervised when they are in or around a pool.

life preservers at poolside. Also, have a telephone nearby and appropriate emergency numbers

• Remove all toys when you leave the pool. Floats, balls and other toys may attract children to the unattended pool.

 Always empty wading pools after your children are finished playing. Infants can drown in just a few inches of water.

GRAYLING COUNTRY CLUB NEWS

by Donna Thomson Wednesday Ladies League

On Wednesday, June 29, the Wednesday Ladies enjoyed yet another very warm day, but we are not complaining. I guess because the weather has been so nice, more of our gals are able to get out and work on their game.

In Flight A, JoAnn Michal had a low net of 27, while Jeanette Kitchen and Donna Thomson tied for low putts of 14.

In Flight B, Sherry Hanson had a low net of 42 and there was another two-way tie for low putts of 13 between Nancy Glasslee and Bev McNamara.

In Flight C, Dorthea Carlson had a low net of 38 and Nancy Hoffman had low putts of 16.

There was only one birdie today and that was by Jeanette Kitchen on #11. There were two chip-ins – one by Lynda Hetrick on #18 and one by JoAnn Michal on #17.

As we enjoyed a nice lunch of either a turkey wrap with tomato, cucumber, and dill sauce or a cottage cheese and fruit plate, a doe and her fawns went loping across the fairway. Sure makes for a nice dining experience.

That's all "fore" now.

The feathered bird story began two weeks ago when the hero of this narrative - now named small fry - crashed into the picture window of a home in Grayling, It suffered a broken wing, but otherwise he was in luck. The window was part of the property of Fenn Holden, a member of the Wilson Ornithological Society. Holden was helpless as the average citizen to help the injured birds, but he was about to leave with his wife to the annual meeting of the society in Rockland, Me. Holden knew that Mrs. Carnes was scheduled to attend the meeting thus began the first leg of Small Fry's trip. Once there Mrs. Carne took charge of Small Fry and he is currently thriving in Tenafly in a large cage barred with cheese cloth and all the maple syrup tonic he can handle.
